

Clucking Chicken Cup

- Poke a small hole in a Solo or other plastic cup.
- Tie a large knot in a piece of nylon line and thread it through the hole, leaving the knot on the outside so that the line will not go through when it is tugged on. To make it easier to thread, have an adult melt the end of the nylon line.
- Decorate your cup with google eyes, feathers and a paper beak, waddle, and comb. Or draw a funny face with markers.
- Cut a small rectangular piece of kitchen sponge
- To make the chicken cluck: slightly dampen the sponge, fold the sponge over the string (at the top) and run the sponge down the string holding it firmly with quick, short tugs and it makes a loud clucking sound.

*For optimal clucking, the line should be 100% nylon
